Battle Near Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam
AP -- The U.S. Air Force sent a flight of B52 bombers today against a North Vietnamese regiment spotted in the D Zone jungle only 35 miles north of Saigon. Intelligence officers said it was the closest North Vietnamese regulars had been reported to the capital.

The B52s dropped their huge bomb loads only four miles ahead of thousands of U.S. and Australian foot soldiers cutting through the brush with machetes and jungle knives. As Operation Silver City on its 10th day slashed deeper into the old Communist stronghold, the Allied forces found 113 more bodies, bringing the enemy toll in a four-hour battle Wednesday to 275 killed.

An American source said two enemy wounded identified the troops as North Vietnamese regulars. One of them, a Viet Cong, said that his battalion of 400 men was 90 per cent North Vietnamese army regulars.

American Would Again Aid Escape

BERLIN (AP) -- A young American just released from an East German jail said today he was caught trying to help an East Berlin family escape to West Berlin and he would try it again if he had it to do over.

John Van Altena, 22, Milton Junction, Wis., was released from a prison in Communist East Berlin Wednesday. He was brought to West Berlin by a New York attorney, Maxwell R.
Rabb, who had taken an interest in the case.

Van Altena was released after serving 17 months of an 8-year sentence for what the East Germans call aiding refugee flight.
He told a news conference he had been in five prisons, was given no work and for the "first 12 months I was alone in a cell big enough for two men."

He was allowed 20 minutes of exercise a day in what he described "as a sort of cage."
Van Altena, down 10 pounds from his normal weight of 165 pounds, was pale, his hands shook and he smiled nervously.
He said he tried to help a family of three escape and was caught at the Communist wall crossing point opposite the U.S.
Army's Checkpoint Charlie.

The mother of the refugee family and her daughter, 5, were in a false compartment in his car, he said.

Van Altena said he had built the hidden compartment into his American car at his own expense and if he had succeeded in bringing out the mother and daughter—he would have gone back two days later to get the father.

He said he was offered no money to bring the family out.
He did it because he wanted to help them and had gotten to know them well before the escape attempt, he said.

Proffer, 80, known as the father of rural electrification in Southeast Missouri, died shortly after being admitted to the Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston, today at 7 a.m.

He became ill yesterday at noon. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Judge Proffer's chief interest was rural electrification. He was the chief organizer when the new Scott-New Madrid-Mississippi Cooperative was formed in 1937.

He served as president of the cooperative from its origin until his death.

His last public act in behalf of rural electrification was attending a meeting of the Missouri-Arkansas Cooperative at Poplar Bluff. He had served as president of the cooperative 14 years.

His third association with an electric cooperative was as vice-president for the past five years of the Associated Electric Cooperative in Springfield.
He was born near Burfordville,
Nov. 22, 1885, son of George and Martha Proffer.

A farmer for a half century,
he began his career as a rural school teacher in the Noxall school near Matthews.

He taught but a short time.
On Jan. 3, 1912 he married Bertie Moore of Matthews. The couple began farming near Matthews.

Major Everett Wiss of Sikeston, who is serving with the military airlift command at Travis air force base, San Francisco, spoke to the Lions club Wednesday at the Holiday Inn.

He described a recent flight to Viet Nam. A cargo plane was landed at Saigon with shooting nearby. He was presented by Program Chairman Earl Cook.
Having flown B17 and B25s during World War II, he is now in the air reserves, and is flying a C1-24, the largest old type cargo plane. The plane can carry a cargo up to 110,000 pounds with a wingspread of 175 feet, is 50 feet high, has a 3,800 horsepower motor, and a speed of 205 miles per hour.

The Viet Cong are constantly jamming the airways, and a pilot must be on guard for proper landing regulations, otherwise landing signals could be changed by the enemy, he said.

Most of Wiss' flying is in the Pacific. Future destinations will be Tokyo, Okinawa, Pago Pago, and Saigon.

Irish Eyes Turn to Pillar Site

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) -- A
parade celebrating St. Patrick's Day streamed along Dublin's
famous O'Connell Street today
—and all eyes turned to the spot where Nelson's pillar once stood.

The 134-foot monument to Britain's most famous admiral was blown up in the early hours of March 8. The explosion was believed to be the work of the English-hating outlawed Irish Republican Army.

Irish demolition troops this week finished off the 50-foot pedestal that remained.

Today's festivities got under way early and quietly with an industrial parade through the city's center.

St. Patrick's Day in Dublin is a quiet affair compared with the "blow out" in New York.
Until recently only the place a Dubliner could get a drink on St.
Pat's was at the Ballsbridge
Dog Show.

The festive day dawned with church bells calling all Irishmen to religious services.
There was a special service at the Church of Ireland's Anglican Cathedral at Downpatrick, County Down, where some believe St. Patrick is buried.

Mishap In Space Mystery

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)
—The Gemini 8 astronauts rode a destroyer toward Okinawa today, while space officials dug into the mystery of the violent mishap that brought their mission to a hair-raising end in the waters of the Pacific Ocean.

The destroyer Leonard F. Masson, which picked Neil Armstrong and David Scott out of the water after the first emergency landing in U.S. man-in-space history, was scheduled to put them ashore at Naha at 5 p.m.

Both were reportedly to have come safely through the dangerous re-entry which abruptly terminated their scheduled three-day flight just 10 hours, 42 minutes after the blastoff.

At a morning news conference
at Houston, Flight Director Gene Kranz said it will be some time before officials can say what caused Gemini 8 to buck
in space.

The trouble which sent the spacecraft into a hair-raising spin happened when there was no voice or telemetry communication between earth and the spacecraft. The cause will not be known, Kranz said, until after an extensive review of flight data.

The astronauts were given a preliminary one-hour physical examination soon after boarding the Mason and were reported in good condition.

An air rescue pilot who flew over the Gemini as it bobbed in the calm waters of the Western Pacific said the pilots were
"acting real cool" after the harrowing experience.

Armstrong and Scott had opened the spacecraft hatches,
Capt. John W. Maddox of Mesa, Ariz., said, "and they were just sitting there enjoying the sun
and eating lunch."

But the troubles they experienced apparently were so dangerous that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration refused to let newsmen hear tape recordings of the astronauts' voices during the critical period when Gemini 8 was out of control 185 miles above the earth.

"None of us know what happened," Dr. Robert Gilruth,
director of NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center, told a post-midnight news conference today.

"But it was very serious and it took utmost effort of the crew to regain control and conduct a safe re-entry and landing."

President Johnson reported he was "greatly relieved" at the safe return of the astronauts and praised their "skill and strength."

The astronauts will be flown to Cape Kennedy Friday to tell their story to anxious officials.

What they have to say will have an important bearing on the future of the U.S. space program. The whole concept of hooking up with another satellite might have to be changed.

The trouble cropped up only half an hour after they achieved
the first linkup with another satellite.

At 5:30 p.m. command
pilot Armstrong climaxed a

Hearnes' Proposal Rapped

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) --
The State Chamber of Commerce said today Gov. Warren
E. Hearnes' proposal for regional planning and community development bill would make the governor a "state agency czar."

The statement by the chamber said the bill is "probably the most far reaching bill introduced in the Missouri Legislature."

"The bill dangerously infringes upon, or virtually eliminates, the authority or responsibilities of numerous state divisions and departments, including the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, Highway Department, Highway Patrol, Real Estate Commission, Health and Welfare Department, Department of Education, Conservation Commission and others."

The Senate State Departments
Committee will hold a second hearing on the bill March 28.

Sponsors have argued it is necessary in order to qualify for federal funds to aid com-

He said he was offered no

He did it because he wanted to

Flavin Ready For Big Day

ST. LOUIS AP -- Robert Flavin had 700 corned beef sandwiches ready for St. Patrick's Day.

For seven years now, the 36-year-old wholesale candy salesman was dragged out of bed at 4:30 a.m. on March 17, donned a wide green bow tie, his green suit, a bright green derby and loaded the sandwiches into his station wagon.

He gives them to employees of the firms he deals with. They have a choice of white or green horse radish. It takes Flavin until the middle afternoon to make his rounds.

ly after being admitted to the vice-president for the past five years of the Associated Electric Cooperative in Springfield.

He was born near Burfordville,

and Martha Proffer.

A farmer for a half century,
he began his career as a rural

Irish Eyes Turn to Pillar Site

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) -- A
parade celebrating St. Patrick's Day streamed along Dublin's
famous O'Connell Street today
--and all eyes turned to the spot
where Nelson's pillar once stood.

The 134-foot monument to Britain's most famous admiral was blown up in the early hours of March 8. The explosion was believed to be the work of the English-hating outlawed Irish
Republican Army.

Irish demolition troops this week finished off the 50-foot pedestal that remained.

Today's festivities got under way early and quietly with an industrial parade through the city's center.

St. Patrick's Day in Dublin is a quiet affair compared with the "blow out" in New York.
Until recently the only place a Dubliner could get a drink on St.
Pat's was at the Ballsbridge
Dog Show.

The festive day dawned with church bells calling all Irishmen to religious services.
There was a special service at the Church of Ireland's Anglican
Cathedral at Downpatrick,
County Down, where some believe St. Patrick is buried.

Radio Station Now on Air

Scott Marriner, general manager, announced that the federal communications commission issued program authority yes-

There will be music and news until special programs are inaugurated.

The frequency of the new 5.5-on at 5:30 a.m. Monday through Saturday, and sign off at 11:30 p.m.

Mishap In Space Mystery

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)
--The Gemini 8 astronauts rode
a destroyer toward Okinawa today, while space officials dug
into the mystery of the violent mishap that brought their mission to a hair-raising end in the waters of the Pacific Ocean.

The destroyer Leonard F. Mason, which picked Neil Armstrong and David Scott out of the water after the first emergency landing in U.S. man-in-space history, was scheduled to put them ashore at Naha at 5 p.m.

Both were reportedly to have come safely through the dangerous re-entry which abruptly terminated their scheduled three-day flight just 10 hours, 42 minutes after the blastoff.

At a morning news conference
at Houston, Flight Director Gene Kranz said it will be some time before officials can say what caused Gemini 8 to buck
in space.

The trouble which sent the spacecraft into a hair-raising spin happened when there was no voice or telemetry communication between earth and the spacecraft. The cause will not be known, Kranz said, until after an extensive review of flight
data.

The astronauts were given a preliminary one-hour physical examination soon after boarding
the Mason and were reported in good condition.

An air rescue pilot who flew over the Gemini said it bobbed in the calm waters of the Western Pacific said the pilots were
"acting real cool" after the harrowing experience.

Armstrong and Scott had opened the spacecraft hatches,
Capt. John W. Maddox, of Mesa, Ariz., said, "and they were just sitting there enjoying the sun
and eating lunch."

But the troubles they experienced apparently were so dangerous that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration refused to let newsmen
hear tape recordings of the astronauts' voices during the critical period when Gemini 8
was out of control 185 miles
above the earth.

"None of us know what happened," Dr. Robert Gilruth,
director of NASA's Manned
Spacecraft Center, told a post-midnight news conference today.

"But it was very serious and
it took utmost effort of the crew
to regain control and conduct a safe re-entry and landing."

President Johnson reported he was "greatly relieved" at the safe return of the astronauts
and praised their "skill and strength."

The astronauts will be flown
to Cape Kennedy Friday to tell
their story to anxious officials.

What they have to say will have an important bearing on the future of the U.S. space program. The whole concept of hooking up with another satellite might have to be changed.

The trouble cropped up only
half an hour after they achieved
the first linkup with another
satellite.

At 5:30 p.m. command
pilot Armstrong climaxed a were still slaves.

The boy was subjected to wearing spurs, a piece of metal placed around his ankles, with 15-inch prongs extending from the back and front.

His mother lived to be more than 100 years old, his father died in 1883, Cullen spent most of his life traveling, doing farm work in Iowa, irrigation work in California, and railroad work from New Orleans to Robinson, Miss.

He moved to Steele in 1915 and lived there until he retired at 90 and moved to Hayti. The welfare office has confirmed his age as 108.

Cullen has been married twice

Hearnes' Proposal Rapped

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) --
The State Chamber of Commerce said today Gov. Warren
E. Hearnes' proposed state and regional planning and community development bill would make the governor a "state agency czar."

The statement by the chamber said the bill is "probably the most far reaching bill introduced in the Missouri Legislature."

"The bill dangerously infringes upon, or virtually eliminates, the authority or responsibilities of numerous state divisions and departments, including the Missouri Division
of Commerce and Industrial Development, Highway Department, Highway Patrol, Real Estate Commission, Health and Welfare Department, Department of Education, Conservation Commission and others."

The Senate State Departments
Committee will hold a second hearing on the bill March 28.
Sponsors have argued it is necessary in order to qualify for federal funds to aid community development.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, March 17 is St. Patrick's Day.

THE WILLOWS ALWAYS KNOW

There are years when it is difficult to know whether March is serious about spring. It is a contrary, cantankerous month, man thinks, and doubtless part of his feeling is due to impatience. The third month is a capricious filly that kicks up her heels and displays an unpredictable disposition.

But there is one sign that never fails. When the pussy willows poke their gray-furred noses to the wind, one can be sure that spring is not far behind.

The pussy willow is a natural partner of stream banks and lowland stretches. Willows and water go together, and the life juice that runs freely between the bark and wood means that country lads can make whistles to rival the pipes of Pan.

The willows are not commercially important trees but they are a part of the woodland family. You can tell the black willows by the glossy, dark-red buds; the swamp willows' buds are a deep blue-black with spots of red near the top. All the willows' buds are single scaled, water-proofed, and without joints or hinges.

It is pussy willow that means spring to most persons. Children gather branches and bring them to the house where the buds open in water. And when those silky, furry noses open to the call of a new season in the lowlands, bees come to the blossoms for their first pollen and nectar.

The pussy willow is a small tree, but it is a tree of ancient lineage. It is easy to grow from shoots and twigs; it is used to bind the soil of ponds and river banks. It has its utilitarian uses, but these warming days the willows mean much more.

When the pussy willows blossom, it tells a man that spring is almost here. And the willows always know.

The Colonel said: "The poor relations between a man and his wife are often his or hers."

LET'S GET OUT AND GO!

Every year about this time, as we think about putting away the snow shovel and oiling the lawnmower, most of us start daydreaming about making this year's vacation trip the greatest ever.

After sticking close to our jobs most of the year, it is only natural to want to pack the family into the car and take off for the mountains, the beach, or for a visit with Aunt Minnie.

Many of us like to explore unfamiliar territory each year, to see the great natural wonders and historic sites America has to offer.

We have a lot of company in our urge to get out and go. The American Automobile Association estimates that more than 255 million vacation and pleasure trips will be taken during 1966, putting $21 billion into circulation all over the country. The new federal income tax reduction will help many of us to pay for these trips.

With so many places to go and so much to see, it makes sense to plan ahead carefully. The nation's oil companies make it easier by giving away nearly 200 million road maps each year, at an estimated cost of around $12 million. Some oil firms also operate touring bureaus that give motorists detailed advice on making travel plans.

In some areas, service station employees attend special training classes to enable them to answer motorists' questions on travel.

Maps have been in use for more than 4,000 years, but when ancient mapmakers ran out of information they usually drew in a desert or a fantastic monster or a sea serpent to disguise their lack of knowledge.

However, in all the half century that has gone by since gas stations began giving away maps, not one has ever resorted to dragons or hobgoblins of any genre to cover up the "unknown." Highly informational from the beginning, today's maps are marvels of condensed intelligence. Revised every year to keep up with the ever-expanding network of highways, they also pinpoint parks, forests, service areas, toll stations, rivers, lakes, mountain ranges, recreational areas, military reservations, airfields and all manner of things to see and do.

The oil company mappers explore first so you can cruise later -- on a fully-charted course.

Parson Jim Hackney says: "The truth doesn't hurt unless it ought to."

One completed job is worth more than a thousand left undone.

A person who is doing his job and doing it well should never be ridiculed. He should be admired and respected.

Since Fielding Potashnick, Scott County Prosecuting Attorney, took office in Jan. 1965, he has tried 14 jury trials for the state.

Of these 14, 12 convictions were reached. His predecessor, during his time in office, which was six years, tried six jury trials.

Potashnick is to be respected. He and his office, which is law, demands respect and should in all circumstances be treated with such.

Earl Cook says: "It's a good thing the world turned out to be round. Just imagine what a square satellite orbit would cost."

IN ONLY 42 YEARS

We have lived in the jet age of international travel long enough to take it for granted. To the younger part of our population there's nothing at all remarkable about being able to go almost anywhere in the world in a matter of hours.

Yet, strange as it may seem to those whose memories do not go so far back, the first successful round the world flight took place only 42 years ago--a mere tick of the clock as history runs. A venture of the Army Air Service, it began on St. Patrick's day, 1924, at a California field. It ended six months and six days later, on September 23. Actually flying time for the 25,553 mile flight was 371 hours, which works out to the then-respectable speed of about 70 miles an hour. All the rest of the time was accounted for by repairs and maintenance and other delays.

This was a great achievement which was to have a far-reaching significance. As Rolla Crick writes in the Portland, Oregon, Journal, "The feat demonstrated that world air travel was feasible and it gave the fledgling American aircraft industry a boost at a critical period. . . . Too, it stimulated the public imagination and more and more people looked ahead to the day when they would be able to cross oceans and continents by air. Soon our own international airline, Pan American, began blazing new trails to other lands, with a pioneering spirit that never has faltered."

Now we can travel 30,000 feet or more above the earth at 600 miles an hour in complete comfort. This is, indeed, an extraordinary age.

Ex-Corporal "Charley" Rafferty says: "Freedom is gone when money makes a farce out of our laws."

MOTHERING SUNDAY

Britain has nothing quite like our Mother's Day, but British vested interests are working on it. More than 50 years ago two pious or sentimental spinster women in Nottingham started to campaign to revive the medieval feast of Mothering Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent. (This year it will be Sunday, March 20.)

The campaign has received the support of a peculiarly British organization, the Mother's Union. More recently it has been taken up by commercial interests. The Economist of London observed two years ago (March 7, 1964): "The Feast of Mon (in the United States) has a fixed date as well as a whole culture behind it; the downtrodden British Mum cannot hope to compete, though a permanent date for Easter, and therefore the Mothering Sunday, would help her."

In medieval days, children offered prayers for, and flowers and cakes to, their grateful mothers. The revived feast still has no place in the Church of England calendar, but the florists have got behind the idea in a great way. The flower trade does more business now on the Saturday before Mothering Sunday than it does on any other single day in the year.

Brits have a tendency these days to go away from home over Easter, leaving their homes and their family graves unbedecked. Naturally British florists find the revival of Mothering Sunday compensatory--and a custom well worth all the promotion involved. So do candy shops and stationers who sell greeting cards. And presumably Mum, who deserves it, is touched and warmed by the special attention.

Clarence Scott says: "The trouble with thinking twice before you speak is that you never get in the conversation."

A TOP SERVICE RECORD Utilities plan to reduce rates by the amount of tax reduction they experience as a result of the new tax law. A recent survey of The Wall Street Journal said that "Scores" of com-

NEW YORK (AP) -- How young in heart are you?

Age is measured by many things--by changes in hair color, the acquisition of wrinkles, slowing of physical activity.

It is also shown by a hardening of the mental arteries, the growth of cynicism and prejudice, and the development of a dislike for meeting new people or having new experiences.

By these last standards, some are elderly before they get out of college; others still are youthful at 70.

One's true age is told by the spirit. It is the real barometer of youth. And you are still pretty young in heart if--

You don't mind picking up a baby, even if it looks pretty sticky.

When you hear of a 21-year-old football player being signed by the pros for a $200,000 bonus, you rather envy the fellow instead of thinking it is a national disgrace.

You can fill out an income tax form without getting an ulcer attack.

If one of your nephews decides to grow a beard, you don't necessarily think he's gone batty.

There are more things you like than dislike.

Children today don't seem much different to you than when you were a child yourself.

You can talk to a teenager about his ambitions or his hobbies without feeling self-conscious or sounding patronizing.

You recall the past with more affection than bitterness, but you wouldn't want to relive it as you are still too busy planning what you want to do in the future.

If a woman driver beats you to a parking place, you don't let it upset your digestion for more than two days.

You are never the first guest to leave a cocktail party.

Now and then you hear a joke you haven't heard before.

The advent of another April makes you feel lazy, but not particularly sad.

At least one day a week you whistle or hum while shaving.

You have as many friends younger than you as you do friends who are older.

Your life is filled more often with wonder than with sour regret.

So now you know whether you still hold springtime in your heart--or have become just one more luddite on time's treadmill.

panies are reducing gas and electric rates "to reflect the federal corporate tax cut."

This will not be universal--some utility companies are in a different financial position than others and will need to retain the tax cut to assure them a fair return on their investment. And reductions will not be heavy--the corporate tax rate cut is small -- 52 to 48 per cent. But it is worth noting the thinking of utility executives tends towards the lowering of rates where possible. And the reason is that it puts investor-owned utilities in a stronger position and tax-subsidized government projects.

Actually, in the long inflationary period we have been experiencing, private utility service has always been a bargain. The cost has remained relatively constant, and in many instances gone down, despite soaring prices for most other commodities and services. That speaks volumes for the industry's technological advance. And it provides unassailable evidence of the rigorous standards of efficiency and economy that are imposed all along the line.

ELECTRONICS ON THE FARM
"The age when a farmer would crumble a handful of dirt, squint into the sky and decide what crop he would plant has long since ended."

That sentence opens an article on the growing use of computers in agriculture which recently appeared in the house organ of a western utility company. It's a new story -- and one filled to the brim with potential significance.

We've all read about some of the miracles electronic computers are performing for industry. Now their magic is making itself felt down on the farm. This doesn't mean we have push-button agriculture. But push-button agricultural decisions are being made right now.

What can the computers do? In a few years, according to one farm management advisor the article quotes, "We will have a story of farm enterprise information and a set of guidelines for farm decision-making by computer. With stored data on land, water, crops, yields, prices, equipment and other variables, the machine will be able to tell a farm manager in minutes the answer to problems which would involve months of hand figuring."

To take a simple specific example, good tractor records can tell whether a farmer should own or lease the equipment and whether it is too large or too small.

Successful modern farming is a business, a craft, an art, and a science, as well as a way of life. Electronics is destined to play a dramatic role in all these phases.

The bus was crowded and the elderly spinster felt her small purse being snatched from her. She turned quickly and thought she saw a suspicious-looking character slipping it into his pocket. Indignant, she jabbed her hand into his pocket, gasped, and then fainted.

"Say," demanded one of the men on the bus, "What have you got in your pocket?"

SOMETHING TO SELL

When an individual is deeply in debt and unable to meet current expenses from income, he looks over what he owns to see if there is something he might sell. This could be a good policy for the Federal government.

No one will deny that the government is hard-pressed financially. It has been estimated --although nobody really knows --that the government has holdings with a value of perhaps $260 billion. If these government properties were sold to private owners, the proceeds would go a long way toward paying off the national debt.

As long as such properties are held by the government, they pay no taxes. In fact, many of them are taking tax money from the government in order to continue operating. If they were privately owned, they would be paying taxes instead of using taxes--and certainly the government needs the money.

Another factor of importance is that government operated business ventures offer unfair competition to personal enterprise. Not only do they pay no taxes but they can go to government as their source of credit. Thus government business operations undermine the stability of our business system.

Of course the money raised from selling government business would offer only temporary relief unless many of the expensive federal plans and programs are cut off. Their elimination is imperative if the United States is to avoid national bankruptcy. Unless our leaders are willing to make the necessary effort and unless the people will back them up, the nation can hardly survive as a going concern. H.L.H.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, March 17 is St. Patrick's Day.

THE WILLOWS ALWAYS KNOW

There are years when it is difficult to know whether March is serious about spring. It is a contrary, cantankerous month, man thinks, and doubtless part of his feeling is due to impatience. The third month is a capricious filly that kicks up her heels and displays an unpredictable disposition.

But there is one sign that never fails. When the pussy willows poke their gray-furred noses to the wind, one can be sure that spring is not far behind.

The pussy willow is a natural partner of stream banks and lowland stretches. Willows and water go together, and the life juice that runs freely between the bark and wood means that country lads can make whistles to rival the pipes of Pan.

The willows are not commercially important trees but they are a part of the woodland family. You can tell the black willows by the glossy, dark-red buds; the swamp willows' buds are a deep blue-black with spots of red near the top. All the willows' buds are single scaled, water-proofed, and without joints or hinges.

It is pussy willow that means spring to most persons. Children gather branches and bring them to the house where the buds open in water. And when those silky, furry noses open to the call of a new season in the lowlands, bees come to the blossoms for their first pollen and nectar.

The pussy willow is a small tree, but it is a tree of ancient lineage. It is easy to grow from shoots and twigs; it is used to bind the soil of ponds and river banks. It has its utilitarian uses, but these warming days the willows mean much more.

When the pussy willows blossom, it tells a man that spring is almost here. And the willows always know.

The Colonel said: "The poor relations between a man and his wife are often his or hers."

LET'S GET OUT AND GO!

Every year about this time, as we think about putting away the snow shovel and oiling the lawnmower, most of us start daydreaming about making this year's vacation trip the greatest ever.

After sticking close to our jobs most of the year, it is only natural to want to pack the family into the car and take off for the mountains, the beach, or for a visit with Aunt Minnie.

Many of us like to explore unfamiliar territory each year, to see the great natural wonders and historic sites America has to offer.

We have a lot of company in our urge to get out and go. The American Automobile Association estimates that more than 255 million vacation and pleasure trips will be taken during 1966, putting $21 billion into circulation all over the country. The new federal income tax reduction will help many of us to pay for these trips.

With so many places to go and so much to see, it makes sense to plan ahead carefully. The nation's oil companies make it easier by giving away nearly 200 million road maps each year, at an estimated cost of around $12 million. Some oil firms also operate touring bureaus that give motorists detailed advice on making travel plans.

In some areas, service station employees attend special training classes to enable them to answer motorists' questions on travel.

Maps have been in use for more than 4,000 years, but when ancient mapmakers ran out of information they usually drew in a desert or a fantastic monster or a sea serpent to disguise their lack of knowledge.

However, in all the half century that has gone by since gas stations began giving away maps, not one has ever resorted to dragons or hobgoblins of any genre to cover up the "unknown." Highly informational from the beginning, today's maps are marvels of condensed intelligence. Revised every year to keep up with the ever-expanding network of highways, they also pinpoint parks, forests, service areas, toll stations, rivers, lakes, mountain ranges, recreational areas, military reservations, airfields and all manner of things to see and do.

The oil company mappers explore first so you can cruise later -- on a fully-charted course.

One completed job is worth more than a thousand left undone.

A person who is doing his job and doing it well should never be ridiculed. He should be admired and respected.

Since Fielding Potashnick, Scott County Prosecuting Attorney, took office in Jan. 1965, he has tried 14 jury trials for the state.

Of these 14, 12 convictions were reached. His predecessor, during his time in office, which was six years, tried six jury trials.

Potashnick is to be respected. He and his office, which is law, demands respect and should in all circumstances be treated with such.

Earl Cook says: "It's a good thing the world turned out to be round. Just imagine what a square satellite orbit would cost."

IN ONLY 42 YEARS

We have lived in the jet age of international travel long enough to take it for granted. To the younger part of our population there's nothing at all remarkable about being able to go almost anywhere in the world in a matter of hours.

Yet, strange as it may seem to those whose memories do not go so far back, the first successful round the world flight took place only 42 years ago--a mere tick of the clock as history runs. A venture of the Army Air Service, it began on St. Patrick's day, 1924, at a California field. It ended six months and six days later, on September 23. Actually flying time for the 25,553 mile flight was 371 hours, which works out to the then-respectable speed of about 70 miles an hour. All the rest of the time was accounted for by repairs and maintenance and other delays.

This was a great achievement which was to have a far-reaching significance. As Rolla Crick writes in the Portland, Oregon, Journal, "The feat demonstrated that world air travel was feasible and it gave the fledgling American aircraft industry a boost at a critical period. . . ." Too, it stimulated the public imagination and more and more people looked ahead to the day when they would be able to cross oceans and continents by air. Soon our own international airline, Pan American, began blazing new trails to other lands, with a pioneering spirit that never has faltered.

Now we can travel 30,000 feet or more above the earth at 600 miles an hour in complete comfort. This is, indeed, an extraordinary age.

Ex-Corporal "Charley" Rafferty says: "Freedom is gone when money makes a farce out of our laws."

MOTHERING SUNDAY

Britain has nothing quite like our Mother's Day, but British vested interests are working on it. More than 50 years ago two pious or sentimental spinster women in Nottingham started to campaign to revive the medieval feast of Mothering Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent. (This year it will be Sunday, March 20.)

The campaign has received the support of a peculiarly British organization, the Mother's Union. More recently it has been taken up by commercial interests. The Economist of London observed two years ago (March 7, 1964): "The Feast of Mon (in the United States) has a fixed date as well as a whole culture behind it; the downtrodden British Mum cannot hope to compete, though a permanent date for Easter, and therefore the Mothering Sunday, would help her."

In medieval days, children offered prayers for, and flowers and cakes to, their grateful mothers. The revived feast still has no place in the Church of England calendar, but the florists have got behind the idea in a great way. The flower trade does more business now on the Saturday before Mothering Sunday than it does on any other single day in the year.

Brits have a tendency these days to go away from home over Easter, leaving their homes and their family graves unbedecked. Naturally British florists find the revival of Mothering Sunday compensatory--and a custom well worth all the promotion involved. So do candy shops and stationers who sell greeting cards. And presumably Mum, who deserves it, is touched and warmed by the special attention.

This will not be universal--some utility companies are in a different financial position than others and will need to retain the tax cut to assure them a fair return on their investment. And reductions will not be heavy--the corporate tax rate cut is small--52 to 48 per cent. But it is worth noting the thinking of utility executives tends towards the lowering of rates where possible. And the reason is that it puts investor-owned utilities in a stronger position and tax-subsidized government projects.

Actually, in the long inflationary period we have been experiencing, private utility service has always been a bargain. The cost has remained relatively constant, and in many instances gone down, despite soaring prices for most other commodities and services. WHEN TRUTH NEEDS REITERATION Some truths require constant reiteration -- because, demonstrably valid as they are, they are always being denied and attacked.

One such truth is this: There is no need whatsoever for socialized electric power development. Any needed project, no matter how big, difficult or costly, can and will be undertaken by the heavily-taxed, publicly-regulated private utilities if they are given the chance.

The record of the industry in every part of the country is one of dramatic progress in every aspect of service. Specific examples abound on every hand. To take just one, a publication of the AFL-CIO union, Construction Craftsman, recently carried a fact-filled article on the expansion plans of a huge California power company. By 1980, it will construct a "supersystem" of generating units and extra-high-voltage transmission lines at a cost of $2.4 billion! This year's investment alone will total $255 million. One of its undertakings, for which site preparations have been completed, is a $61 million atomic power plant which will generate enough power to serve a city of 500,000 population.

This company is typical of the industry of which it is an important part. The figures naturally vary from area to area, depending on population and demand, but they assure that all who use power will have their needs met--and at rates which pay only the costs involved plus a modest profit. And, at the same time, the local utility is always a major source of taxation for governmental bodies of all kinds.

The factual record totally refutes the claims of the socialized power zealots.

A henpecked husband visited a psychiatrist and said he had a recurring nightmare, "Every night," he said, "I dream I'm shipwrecked with 12 beautiful women."

"What's so terrible about that?" asked the psychiatrist. "Have you ever tried cooking for 12 women?" said the brow-beaten husband.

EQUIPMENT TEST "I won't be home until late, dear," phoned the Fire Chief as he eyed the cute blonde friend in his office. "I'm trying out a new siren."

For weeks now the Federal Mediation Service has been warily stalking the inner sanctums of the West Coast maritime industry.

H. L. Hunt Says

SOMETHING TOSELL When an individual is deeply in debt and unable to meet current expenses from income, he looks over what he owns to see if there is something he might sell. This could be a good policy for the Federal government.

No one will deny that the government is hard-pressed financially. It has been estimated --although nobody really knows --that the government has holdings with a value of perhaps $260 billion. If these government properties were sold to private owners, the proceeds would go a long way toward paying off the national debt.

As long as such properties are held by the government, they pay no taxes. In fact, many of them are taking tax money from the government in order to continue operating. If they were privately owned, they would be paying taxes instead of using taxes--and certainly the government needs the money.

Another factor of importance is that government operated business ventures offer unfair competition to personal enterprise. Not only do they pay no taxes but they can go to government as their source of credit. Thus government business operations undermine the stability of our business system.

Of course the money raised from selling government businesses would offer only temporary relief unless many of the expensive federal plans and programs are cut off. Their elimination is imperative if the United States is to avoid national bankruptcy. Unless our leaders are willing to make the necessary effort and unless the people will back them up, the nation can hardly survive as a going concern. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Harry Bridges' Pacific Dock Union Seeks and Gets Pledge Of July Strike Support From Communist-Labor Fed.

Washington, D.C. -- It's a long, long time since "Bloody Thursday" on the Embarcadero --almost 32 years.

On that day, July 5, 1934, the police charged into the longshoremen's picket line on the San Francisco docks. Two men were killed. A hundred were hurt.

A general strike followed. Industries shut down. Actually only the utilities operated. On the waterfront the strike was led by tough, scowling, disciplined Harry Bridges.

Since then he has been the labor power on the Pacific piers. He has mellowed as he has aged. To today's generation he is virtually unknown. His strikes are rarer. And far more peaceful. But they can be just as crippling.

Now, once more, he is talking of tying up the Pacific shipping -- all the way from the California coast to Canada, Alaska and Hawaii.

At 12:01 a.m. next July 1st, Harry Renton Bridges, president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), and his colleagues legally can call out the tens of thousands of members. These are the men who keep the cargoes moving across the docks of the Embarcadero and other West Coast ports, across Hawaiian piers, across the Pacific to Asiatic and Vietnamese harbors.

His union's contract with the Pacific Maritime Assn. expires that night. For weeks now the government here has been watching and wooing Bridges and company.

For weeks now the Federal Mediation Service has been warily stalking the inner sanctums of the West Coast maritime industry.

For weeks now some men in the Pentagon have been studying a strike's effect on wartime logistics. For weeks now everybody has been saying, oh, he would not dare.

And then, suddenly word came that there were strike discussions at a recent meeting of ILWU leaders.

Not only did they talk of a hard-hitting strike, but they explored the promise of support from some mighty militant waterfront unions abroad -- affiliates of something called the World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU).

This could mean paralysis of some American shipping across Asian waters and in Oriental ports.

Reports of such support were brought back from a WFTU world congress held some months back in Warsaw. In glowing, comradely words the pledge of backing for a West Coast shipping strike early this summer was communicated by two of Harry Bridges' closest colleagues.

One is his second-in-command -- perhaps now that Bridges is slowing down the second-in-command is really first. He is Louis Goldblatt, ILWU secretary-treasurer. The other chap is Jack Price, a Seattle waterfront official.

They had spent some time in Warsaw with the WFTU delegates. They had dined with them publicly, privately and officially. They had heard searing attacks on the U.S. "imperialist" policy in South Viet Nam.

The WFTU delegates did what comes naturally. Their organization is a Soviet front. It specializes in attacking America.

On my desk are letters from Allen Dulles, former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency. He wrote to me while he headed CIA. In these communications he described the WFTU as "one of the most dangerous of the international Communist front organizations. . . (and a) vicious organizations."

And he adds that the WFTU "is an organization used by the Soviets for political purposes . . . it cannot be honestly described in any sense as a trade union organization."

There are other documents in which he talks of the WFTU as a "fascist power." Its attacks on the U. S. over the decades have been brutal -- attacks emanating from Communist lands including Red China.

Therefore it surprised observers here to learn that Louis Goldblatt returned from Warsaw to report:

"... With our contracts expiring in 1966, we pointed out that circumstances could arise where we might be compelled to strike and also be forced to call for overseas support. . . . We got a very warm response."

The delegation (from the ILWU to the Sixth Congress of the WFTU in Warsaw -- VR) can report that if we have to call for help from overseas unions, we will get an excellent response.

What could that mean in these tense days?

Maxie Baughan Visits Senior High School

Philadelphia Eagles star football player Maxie Baughan made a brief visit to Sikeston Monday morning visiting the high school and talking to one of the Physical Education classes.

Maxie, who played high school football at Bessemer high school in Bessemer, Alabama, and college ball at Georgia Tech, was on his way to Kentucky when he stopped off at Sikeston to visit one of the regional representatives.

Maxie who is a fine speaker spoke to the high school third hour physical education class and stated that "playing professional football is real easy and not hard" and ended his statement with the comment that it just takes about 14 years of football to play. Maxie of course was just joking "I hope" because from the way it looks from the stands it doesn't look like just any one can play Pro Football, what do you think?

Another note that is very interesting is that pro football players go to practice about mid July and play about six months of football each year.

Attorneys Hope To Admit Ball Club Money Data

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Attorneys in Wisconsin's antitrust suit against baseball hoped to reach agreement today on the admission of secret financial information on National League ball clubs into the record.

Until they agree, the state cannot rest its case. But it appeared likely that this would at last be accomplished today. That would bring baseball to trial on Friday for the presentation of evidence in defense of the National League and its members.

The financial issue is an integral part of Wisconsin's case against the senior circuit stemming from the Braves' move to Atlanta and the alleged consequent boycott of Milwaukee as a major league city.

Counsel held a two-hour conference Wednesday in Judge Elmer Roller's chambers on the confidential financial reports. Afterward, Judge Roller announced that more information was required from accountants who have been examining the material which is under the protective custody of the court. He said the needed reports would be obtained overnight.

Some 234 exhibits offered by the state were accepted by Judge Roller after nearly two full days of frequently heated arguments.

Earlier in the day, the court accepted a book titled "Facts," written by former baseball commissioner Fred Frick. The defense had called it "hearsay" and argued that the commissioner did not claim to have authentic information on baseball's economic impact.

The argument over exhibits was sparked by a heated exchange on the subject of baseball expansion.

Even in warmer climates where the instructions "wait until frost danger is past" do not apply to seed planting outdoors, there still is a change in soil temperature during the winter months. So, instead of checking the frost-free date, why not check soil temperature to make certain that the coldness and general clammy feeling of soils in winter is gone. When soils have warmed up, the time to plant outdoors has finally arrived.

Maxie Baughan Visits Senior High School

Philadelphia Eagles star football player Maxie Baughan made a brief visit to Sikeston Monday morning visiting the high school and talking to one of the Physical Education classes.

Maxie, who played high school football at Bessemer high school in Bessemer, Alabama, and college ball at Georgia Tech, was on his way to Kentucky when he stopped off at Texas to visit one of the regional representatives.

Maxie who is a fine speaker spoke to the high school third hour physical education class and stated that "playing professional football is real easy and not hard" and ended his statement with the comment that it just takes about 14 years of football to play. Maxie of course was just joking "if hope" because from the way it looks like just any one can play Pro Football, what do you think?

Another note that is very interesting is that pro football players go to practice about mid July and play about six months of football each year.

Magicians To Play at Scott City Monday

Basketball fans are pretty much like hungry people going through a cafeteria line. Everybody has a taste for every dish.

And the Fabulous Magicians, who will play at the Ilmo-Scott City gym against the SEMO coaches on the night of March 21, Monday at 8:00 o'clock, serve up a variety of round ball dishes in their amazing court menu.

For the fan who likes scoring . . . the Magicians can stuff the ball through the nets more ways than a farmer can go to a fair. In such nationally famous shooters as Josh Grider, Marques Haynes and Tom Gipson, the Magicians offer a variety of marksmanship that includes the long sets, the driving lay-ups and a flock of trick shots ranging from bouncing the leather in or dunking it from above the laces.

Competent observers believe the Haynes-owned Magicians can probably move the ball into scoring position with more skill and deft maneuvering than any team in the roundball world. Their behind-the-book passes, meshed with uncanny dribbling and decoying feeds make the Magicians' fast break a thing of beauty and entertainment.

Throughout their classy exhibition of scoring and rebounding the Magicians keep an audience entertained with a brand of court comedy unsurpassed in the sports world. They've pleased audiences in 47 states and on three continents. And they took a winning streak of more than 2500 games into their thirteenth season on international travels.

Methodist 'Circuit Rider' to Motor across Missouri

MCCRACKEN, Kan. (AP) — The Rev. Sidney Dillinger will saddle up his horse next Friday and set out on a trip that few ministerial circuit riders of a century ago would have undertaken.

He'll head east, aiming to arrive at Baltimore, Md., — more than 1,000 miles — in time for the bicentennial of American Methodism there April 21-24.

The Rev. Dillinger will dress as an early-day Methodist circuit rider. His horse is Chester, a four-year-old registered Morgan gelding. The minister, a slight man in his early 50s, is an experienced horseman and selected Chester about a month ago especially for the trip.

The Rev. Dillinger is making one concession to the endurance of his forebears. He'll put his horse in a trailer and ride across Missouri in a car. But this isn't just in consideration for the horse.

"I cannot be gone from my church the additional 10 days it would take to ride across Missouri," he said.

The Centennial Committee came up with the idea of cross country circuit riders to focus attention on the celebration.

The committee's idea was to have one minister make an 800-mile trip by horseback from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to Baltimore, to commemorate the Methodist circuit riders who preached across America starting about 200 years ago.

When more than 130 applications for the ride were received the committee decided on a different approach. A dozen ministers were chosen from various parts of the country to start their rides from various towns.

Although the Rev. Dillinger's ride is considered one of the longest, one minister began his ride last week from Vidalia, La., and is expected to cover 1,300 miles.

The Kansas minister is being sponsored by the Central Kansas Conference of the Methodist Church and — like his predecessors — he will preach in Methodist churches along the way.

The bicentennial committee noted that it had no problem in arranging overnight lodging for ministers making the trips. Finding stables for the horses has been more difficult.

The Rev. Dillinger hopes to make about eight miles per hour on some hard-riding days but the trip will be broken up by a number of church meetings along the way.

His schedule calls for him to ride into Old Shawnee Mission the afternoon of March 25. From there he will take a car to McClure, Ill. A number of ministers are expected to join him there for a morning of horseback riding on March 28.

The remainder of his journey will take him through Illinois, Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia and into Maryland.

Winners in Sewing Event To Be Told

KENNETT — 180 finalists in the Southeast Missouri sew with cotton contest will gather at the high school Saturday at 9 a.m. where winners will be named in the 12 county competition. Garments will range from sportswear to high fashion, made by 4-H and Home Economics girls from Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Miss., Mississippi, New Madrid and Scott, Wayne, Reynolds, Ripley, Carter, Pemiscot and Stoddard counties.

A special attraction for the finalist will be the modeling event directed by Mrs. Bennett Boaz of Memphis. Modeling of the garments will begin at 2:30 p.m. This event is open to the public.

Other events of interest are "personalities of fabrics" presented by Lawanna Walker, home economist of the National Cotton Council in Memphis and Emaly Turner, clothing specialist of the University of Missouri in Columbia. This will take place from 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. at the high school.

J. M. Ragsdale, economist of the University of Missouri in Columbia will be on the program at 1:30 p.m. and will give information on new mill technology; harvesting and ginning practices and the future of cotton and what it takes to make it better. This speech is geared to be of interest to both men and women and will proceed the style show.

The purpose of the "Sew With Cotton" club is to encourage the homemaker of tomorrow to sew quality garments made of cotton.

The program is sponsored by Missouri Cotton Producers association, in cooperation with the University of Missouri Extension Home Economists, 4-H leaders and Home Economics teachers.

Actress Hopes for Oscar

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "If someone else's name is called," says Oscar nominee Ruth Gordon, "I hope I don't stand up and make a fool of myself."

Naturally she hopes that her own name will be announced April 18 as winner of the award for best supporting actress of 1965. But she has insulated herself against disappointment.

Miss Gordon was nominated for her role as the raucous mother of Natalie Wood in "Inside Daisy Clover." Oddly, she has been nominated for an Academy Award before, but as a writer — she and husband Garson Kanin wrote several films for Spencer Tracy, Katharine Hepburn and for Judy Holliday.

"But this is the first time I have been up for an Oscar as an actress," she reported. "I wouldn't be less than honest if I didn't say I would dearly love to win."

"I played extra in the early days of movies at Fort Lee, N.J.," she said. "One of the pictures I appeared in was 'Madame Butterfly,' starring Mary Pickford."

There was a lapse in Miss Gordon's film career as she starred on Broadway. She came to Hollywood in the 1940s to appear in such films as "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "Action in the North Atlantic." Although she wrote screen plays here, there was an interval of 23 years before she returned as an actress in "Inside Daisy Clover" and "Lord Love a Duck."

"Now I'm ready to try my luck in films again," she said.

Wallace Combo Will Play For Alabama Voters

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — to watch them on a 6:30 television show."

George Jr., 14 and next to youngest of the Wallaces' four children, is an eighth grade pupil at Bellingham Junior High School in Montgomery. He plays an electric guitar and sings in the combo.

Four years ago, during his father's successful race for governor, young George made a few speeches for him. Standing on a chair to reach the microphone, he told the crowds: "My father is a good man. I want you

The elder Wallace is campaigning again, but this time he's trying to get his wife elected instead of himself. However, both of them have made it abundantly clear that if Mrs. Wallace, 39, becomes Alabama's first woman governor, George will continue to make the policy decisions and run the state government as he has since his inauguration in January 1963. He is barred by law from succeeding himself.

Pausing to look after the youngest child, Janie Lee, 4, candidate Lurleen said: "I'm quite excited . . . at the thought of being the first woman governor."

And, she added, "I think we'll win it. I'm very confident we will win it." Mrs. Wallace shares her husband's militant segregationist philosophy.

Mrs. Wallace and her husband have said they will travel throughout the state in quest of votes in the May 3 Democratic primary. During the interview, she emphasized the togetherness with repeated reference to "our" campaign.

In their first appearance together after she became a candidate, Mrs. Wallace spoke for two minutes at a rally in Birmingham; the governor talked for more than 30 minutes.

Mrs. Wallace has made no attempt to avoid discussion of her recent surgery — a hysterectomy — and the disclosure that she was treated for cancer.

"My health is good," she declared with emphasis. "I have statements from the doctors if it becomes necessary to use them. There is absolutely nothing wrong with me."

After her operation in January of this year, the doctors issued a statement saying no further evidence of malignancy could be found and that the cancer had been halted. They said they found no reason why she could not carry a normal life.

Mrs. Wallace said the response to her campaign for governor "has been tremendous, even before I announced." And since then, she said she has received an average of 350 to 400 letters a day. She hopes to answer each one, with the help of two typists working sometimes into the night.

The governor's wife spends much of her time with her children — George Jr., Janie Lee and Peggy, 16, who still live at home, and Mrs. James Parsons, 21, of Birmingham, another daughter.

"They all encouraged me to run," she said. "They think it's wonderful. After all, they have been around politics for a long time. The governor spent six years in the Legislature and six years as a judge before becoming chief executive."

If she is elected, Mrs. Wallace has promised to continue what

Methodist 'Circuit Rider' to Motor across Missouri

MOCCRAKEN, Kan. (AP) — The Rev. Sidney Dillinger will saddle up his horse next Friday and set out on a trip that few ministerial circuit riders of a century ago would have undertaken.

He'll head east, aiming to arrive at Baltimore, Md., more than 1,000 miles away—in time for the bicentennial of American Methodism there April 21-24.

The Rev. Dillinger will dress as an early-day Methodist circuit rider. His horse is Chester, a four-year-old registered Morgan gelding. The minister, a slight man in his early 50s, is an experienced horseman and selected Chester about a month ago especially for the trip.

The Rev. Dillinger is making one concession to the endurance of his forebears. He'll put his horse in a trailer and ride across Missouri in a car. But this isn't just in consideration for the horse.

"I cannot be gone from my church the additional 10 days it would take to ride across Missouri," he said.

The Centennial Committee came up with the idea of cross country circuit riders to focus attention on the celebration.

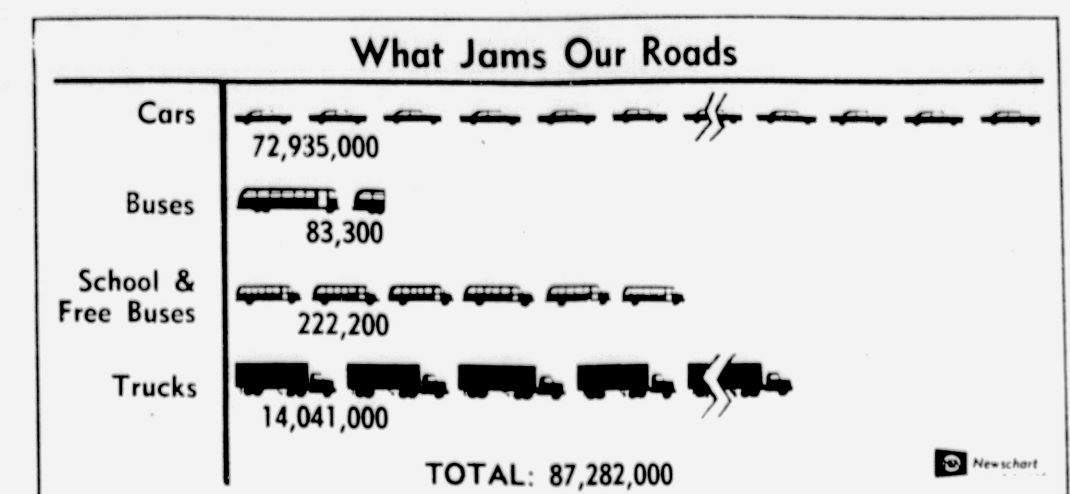

The committee's idea was to have one minister make an 800-mile trip by horseback from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to Baltimore, to commemorate the Methodist circuit riders who preached across America starting about 200 years ago.

When more than 130 applications for the ride were received the committee decided on a different approach. A dozen ministers were chosen from various parts of the country to start their rides from various towns.

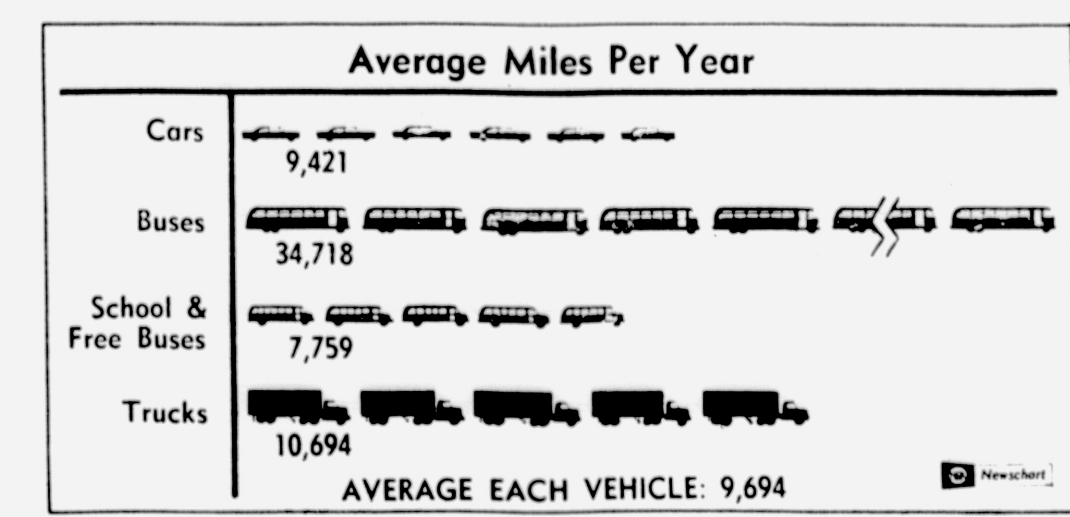

Although the Rev. Dillinger's ride is considered one of the longest, one minister began his ride last week from Vidalia, La., and is expected to cover 1,300 miles.

The Kansas minister is being sponsored by the Central Kansas Conference of the Methodist Church and—like his predecessors—he will preach in Methodist churches along the way.

The bicentennial committee noted that it had no problem in

Winners in Sewing Event To Be Told

KENNETT — 180 finalists in the Southeast Missouri sew with cotton contest will gather at the high school Saturday at 9 a.m. where winners will be named in the 12 county competition. Garments will range from sportswear to high fashion, made by 4-H and Home Economics girls from Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid and Scott, Wayne, Reynolds, Ripley, Carter, Pemisot and Stoddard counties.

A special attraction for the finalist will be the modeling event directed by Mrs. Bennett Boaz of Memphis. Modeling of the garments will begin at 2:30 p.m. This event is open to the public.

Other events of interest are "personality of fabrics" presented by Lawanna Walker, home economist of the National Cotton Council in Memphis and Emelyn Turner, clothing specialist of the University of Missouri in Columbia. This will take place from 9:30 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. at the high school.

J. M. Ragsdale, economist of the University of Missouri in Columbia will be on the program at 1:30 p.m. and will give information on new mill technology; harvesting and ginning practices and the future of cotton and what it takes to make it better. This speech is geared

Two Contests in Dexter Dissolve

DEXTER — A change in Dexter's political picture took place Monday when Willis Conner filed for mayor and Mayor Melvin Gainer withdrew as a candidate for re-election, according to City Clerk George McCracken.

Conner is now the only candidate seeking the office.

Gainer is a candidate for Democratic nomination for state representative.

Conner is a Dexter businessman and is a first ward councilman.

Conner has been a councilman for several years.

While the mayor contest changed, another short-lived contest evaporated when Arthur Sadler, who had previously filed as a candidate for police judge, withdrew, according to McCracken.

Sadler was opposing incumbent Otis "Red" Robinson who is seeking another term. As of 10 a.m. Monday, Robinson is without opposition.

There are contests in both the first and third wards for councilmen posts.

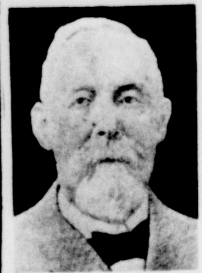

In the first ward, incumbent Sherman Boone is seeking a second term and is opposed by Floyd Dunlap. In the Third Ward, there are three in the race. They include the present officeholder, Carl McRoy, in addition to "Pete" Atherton, and J. D. Martin.

Joe Weber, Dexter businessman, has no opposition for the position of Second Ward Alderman.

Two other candidates are also running unopposed. They are Clyde "Pete" Healy for Chief of Police, and Charles Bland for City Collector.

McCracken said that the deadline for candidates to file is 11 a.m. March 25.

When I Was A Boy

B.F. "Pappy" Blanton

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes.

(Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

January 2, 1920

When I was a boy men were engaged every winter in clearing the ground of the heavy timber that grew all over Howard county, and as spring approached log rollings were the order of the day all over the neighborhood. Invitations were sent out and when the log rolling day came about all the men in the neighborhood would gather for the day's work. They should work awhile and then stop to rest and talk about the current events of the day, and incidentally about some neighbor who was not present. When 12 o'clock came work ceased and all repaired to the house where dinner was served, and such dinners are rarely seen in these days of H. C. of L. There was everything served that farm or forest could furnish, and we feel like we would love to see the like again before we shuffle off this mortal coil, but we guess we never will. These great dinners were all cooked in an open fireplace and the good women of those days all knew how to cook a dinner fit for a king. And cakes! My! There were stacks and pyramids of cakes, and they were sure enough cakes and none of your modern make believe cakes we now have. Not by a jug full. Everybody wanted to go to a log rolling and house raising for the sake of the big dinner if for no other reason.

When I was a boy living in a thickly timbered county we were never shy on having an abundance of all kinds of nuts, such as walnuts, hickory nuts and hazel nuts. In the fall of the year all the boys, black and white, spent many hours in the woods gathering nuts of which there was always a bountiful crop, but it took a considerable amount of time and patience to gather a half bushel of hulled hazel nuts, for you had to gather them, spread them out to dry, and then hull them. They were quite small and it took a lot of them to fill a half bushel measure, but they were well worth all the time and labor it required to gather them. Gathering hickory nuts and walnuts was an easy job, for generally we just waited for them to fall to the ground.

When I was a boy farmers never got any cash for their produce but had always to take it out in trade. Poultry and eggs hardly sold for enough to pay for taking it to town and a tub full of eggs would usually supply the demand in any of the small towns. Dried apples and peaches generally found a ready sale at a small price as they could be shipped out on boats to St. Louis, but the merchants never paid any cash. You had to trade it out or there was no sale. Now look how the whirligig of time has changed things. Everything the farmer has to sell brings spot cash and no grumbling, and at prices our ancestors never thought of. By the way, this reminds me that the farmer is the best business man on the earth for he sells for spot cash every time.

When I was a boy I never thought that I would live long enough to see all the changes that I have seen in the past seventy years of my life. Why, when I was a boy there was no railroad in Missouri, the telegraph had not yet come in, there was not a sewing machine in Central Missouri, no electric lights (they had never been dreamed of), no street cars in the state, no talking machines, no moving picture shows, no high taxes, no money, hardly, or anything else in the way of comfort or convenience, but we had something of far more value, good health and contentment, which, according to my way of thinking, is the greatest riches on earth, and now, looking back, I do not see that people are as well off as they were when I was a boy.

- | | | |
|---------------------------|---------------------|-----------------------------|
| 19-inch unbaked pie shell | 2 eggs, beaten | 1 teaspoon vanilla |
| 2 cups sugar | 1 cup MILNOT | 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese |
| 2 tablespoons flour | 1/4 cup MILNOT salt | |

Combine ingredients in order mentioned, blend thoroughly; pour into pie shell. Bake at 400° for 10 minutes, reduce heat to 350° and bake until firm—about 35 minutes. Cool.

MILNOT goes better wherever you would use milk or cream... in coffee, mashed potatoes, cream soups or desserts. It makes modern mixes richer and creamier, and whips into creamy peaks. Rich in flavor, in vitamins and proteins, because it takes a whole quart of milk to make one can of MILNOT!

If cows could... they'd give MILNOT.

VIET NAM MONTAGE

BY DICK VAUGHAN

If World War 2 was the War of the Draftee, and the Korean War the War of the Reservist, then Viet Nam must surely be the War of the Professional.

Despite the odoriferous mumbings of the unwashed, bearded Beatnik, few of their ilk are represented in Viet Nam today. The average soldier in Viet Nam is not one who was recently jerked from hearth and home, and shoved into the breach as cannon fodder as some protestors would have you believe, neither are they sadistic killers who derive pleasure from putting torch to a village, or slaughtering innocent people.

They are Professionals; Men who have attended classes together at Fort Benning, sweated out field problems in South Carolina, and answered alerts in Germany. They reacted to the Cuban crisis, and even though it may have been distasteful to some, they stood by in Mississippi.

They have pulled long, lonely hours of Officer of the Day, Sgt. of the Guard, and even C. O. They have shared drinks in officer's and N. C. O. Clubs, and coffee in rainstorms.

It is a very good thing that this army is composed in the main, of Professionals, because to paraphrase the late Mr. Churchill, "Never have so few, been beleaguered so much, by so many."

The draftee of World War 2 had everything from War Stamp drives to commercials such as "Lucky Strike Greens have Gone to War" to bolster his morale. He was told to "Hurt the Hun" and "Slap the Jap" to make the World safe for Democracy.

"I'm sorry Jane," one add ran, "But you can't have your new refrigerator now, we're busy making engines for the B-24 so that your Joe can hurry home to you."

Now while I really doubt that Lucky Strike cigarettes changing from green to white packages shortened the war by one second, it is indicative of the type of moral support that soldiers in WW II received.

Today, you can find full page ads in newspapers and magazines, asking for contributions to help the Viet Cong! You will find where American citizens are volunteering propaganda broadcasts to be beamed from Hanoi, and while during WW II Service men's wives proudly displayed stars in their windows, today they are requesting unlisted telephone numbers to avoid the crank calls.

Professional soldiers are used to a certain degree of misunderstanding from civilians during peace-time. We are all familiar with Rudyard Kipling's "Tommy," and long ago adopted his, as our own personal philosophy. I am glad Mr. Kipling is no longer with us. How would his "Tommy" adjust to the demonstrations of today?

Two Captured After Shooting At Officer

CAIRO, ILL. - Two men captured near Mounds Friday evening after allegedly shooting at an Alexander County deputy sheriff and escaping from him in a cloud of car exhaust, were arraigned Monday before Alexander County Magistrate Robert M. Williams and charged with attempted murder.

Sheriff Earl Shepherd reported that bond was set at $10,000 for each man. The suspects were identified as Charles Morgan, 26, Memphis, and Johnny Paul Washam, 33, Clarksdale, Miss.

The suspects were found Friday evening in a farm field after a search of the Cache River bottoms near Mounds. The men were captured by Mounds Chief of Police Ronnie Bonner and Deputy Sam McAllister.

The suspects had been stopped early Friday morning by Deputy J. D. McHughes for a routine check when they started firing at him and sped away in their car.

Morgan is reportedly wanted in Senatobia, Miss. In connection with the theft of about $100,000 in bonds from a courthouse.

Thieves Enter Dexter Store

DEXTER - The Harris Sporting Goods store on West McCollum Street here, was broken into Sunday night and several items were stolen, according to Police Chief Pete Healy.

The thief or thieves gained entrance to the store by breaking a glass in the rear door. The theft was discovered early Monday when the sporting goods store was opened.

Among the items reported missing were two shot guns, four or five wrist watches and knives, some 22 calibre shells, and a baseball mitt.

Medical Changes Spreading From New U.S. Demands

EDITOR'S NOTE — Under the impact of new demand and elaborate federal programs, traditional ways of U.S. medicine may be reshaped in an era of innovation. Here's a look at the forms this evolution might take in this third of five articles.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dramatic, profound changes are spreading from the collision between new health demands and traditional care.

Emerging, in a sense, is the "super doctor" and "super nurse."

The do-it-all-yourself days of the physician are closing out. Instead, he's becoming more the quarterback of a new kind of health team. He is, of necessity, delegating some familiar old functions to people specifically trained to perform them.

Forteen years ago, a doctor would have screamed if a nurse dared to give a hypodermic or set up an intravenous feeding. Now it's becoming routine for her, one physician said.

Time is called the scarcest commodity for the doctor who spent 10 years or more learning his skills.

So he is stepping up the ladder, to the top of a pyramid where he can care for more people, do more and new things.

In responsibilities and skills, the registered nurse is moving up, too. Licensed practical nurses now perform some of the registered nurses' former chores, including changing simple dressings and hospital work have nearly 130,000 such practical nurses. Technicians, clerks, secretaries, business school graduates, housekeepers, are performing duties once shouldered by doctor or nurse.

Appearing also is the nurse-midwife — the Johns Hopkins Hospital is training some — for "there is no possibility that all the infants going to be born can be delivered by physicians," said Dr. Thomas B. Turner, Hopkins Medical School dean.

"Also," he added, "there is no possibility of having enough psychiatrists to deal individually with all patients. Again, the physicians must have help from allied professions."

Nurse-midwives are trained to handle routine prenatal and postnatal care, including advice on feeding infants, and to perform deliveries, unless complications are suspected or do arise.

And why not, several authorities suggest, borrow from the military system that quickly trains "medics" or corpsmen to high skill for specific lifesaving work on the battlefield? Their counterparts can be used at home.

Some medical leaders object that the homefront "medic" might "not know when he's getting in over his head, and might harm the patient." Proponents think he could perform with awareness of his own limitations, and at least provide services where none exist.

Changes — not all of which either patients or doctors may like — have been coming. House calls by doctors are far less frequent. Many doctors are banded together into group practice. Nurses or technicians often draw blood samples, or conduct some routine tests.

Some experts predict development of special assistants to take your medical history, before the doctor sees you to ask more questions, and make his diagnosis and recommendations.

In most discussions of change from old ways, there is concern about maintaining quality of care and training, and the personal touch in medicine. And sometimes there are fears about government dictation of how medicine shall be practiced.

But more changes are ahead to meet the demand for more health services.

"The public now is collective."

ly bargaining for medical care. The medical profession has been concerned with what it thinks the patient needs. Now society is demanding things, which may or may not be related to need," said Dr. George A. Wolf Jr., vice president for medical and dental affairs of Tufts University, and executive director of Tufts-New England Medical Center.

In 1940, one in three of all health workers was a physician, said Dr. William H. Stewart, surgeon-general of the U.S. Public Health Service. "Now it is one in 10. The health industry is the third largest in the nation, and the fastest growing."

By some estimates, a million more health professionals will be needed within a few years.

Medical organizations have initiated programs to recruit personnel and help solve manpower problems. The loan program to medical students of the American Medical Association is one example.

The main push to augment manpower is being financed by federal funds.

In a health-education message to Congress on March 1, President Johnson recommended a three-year program of grants for training health workers. The money would be used to build and improve schools, provide fellowships and develop new types of health personnel.

The program also would provide grants to states and communities for making better use of health manpower facilities and setting up comprehensive health services.

Government money is helping to build 13 new medical schools which will add 800 to 1,000 new first-year students in time. And 10 other medical schools show promise of later coming into being.

Congress recently authorized grants of $480 million during the next three years for construction, repair and replacement of schools to train physicians, dentists — existing schools graduate only 3,210 dentists a year now — optometrists, pharmacists and podiatrists.

Grants for operating funds require schools to increase their entering classes by at least five students each. This could add up to 440 more students each year, right away.

Nursing schools also are receiving grants for expansion, and additional students.

Loan and scholarship funds are becoming available, with up to 50 per cent of total loans and accrued interest to be canceled for physicians, dentists and optometrists who choose to practice in areas, mainly rural, which have shortages. Loans and scholarships also are being made available to train more nurses.

The demand for physicians is insatiable, says an AMA spokesman. Expansion of other groups in the total health team must be a main part of the answer.

This means more medical technologists — even if automation in the laboratory speeds their work — more medical librarians, nurses aides, home health aides, most of some 45 different occupations.

In cooperation with the Department of Labor, the American Hospital Association is helping train up to 8,000 men and women as nursing aids, surgical technicians, housekeepers, dietary aides, and other jobs in hospitals.

Labor Pinch Felt in Area Farm Region

The first of the 1966 weekly series of farm labor bulletins, published by the Missouri Division of Employment Security at Jefferson City, has been released.

The Konnett office reports that no farming activity has started in Dunklin County. The local office is receiving a few seasonal farm hand orders with salary range from 75 cents to $1 per hour, depending on the qualifications of the farm hand.

Cotton acreage will be reduced in the county due to the new farm bill. Strawberry acreage is now reduced to under 40 acres for this season. The Crew Leader Registration Act has brought an end to the annual worker plan recruitment.

At Caruthersville practically all farming activity has been at a complete standstill since about December 15. Fields are still wet and the lack of activity is expected to continue for another two weeks.

The Cape Girardeau office reports that it has several urgent orders for farm families to work in the local area. Wages range from $40 to $50 per week with house furnished. The demand for seasonal day labor there is very light.

The four-county area served by the Sikeston office is expected to plant approximately 130,000 acres of cotton, 500,000 acres of soybeans, and 270,000

Naval Training Ends at Great Lakes

Dexter - Larry Elmer Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer "Shorty" Henderson, will graduate from recruit training command at Great Lakes, Ill., March 25.

He entered the Navy January 18. He will leave Great Lakes March 29 on a 14 day leave after which he will be enroute to his new station.

He is a graduate of Dexter high school and was a clerk at the Kroger Store before entering the Navy.

Granary Razed In Canalou Fire

CANALOU - A granary was destroyed by fire Sunday before firemen could arrive. The Matthews Fire Department was called, but the fire was out of control when firemen arrived, it was reported.

Firemen kept the fire from spreading to other buildings. No damage estimate was available.

acres of corn. About 100,000 acres will be under the crop retirement program. The labor supply is far less plentiful than in previous years. The demands for year-round farm hands number 36 openings and offer wages of 80 cents to 90 cents per hour. Several orders offer weekly wages ranging from $40 to $60 per week. Out of area movement of labor is expected to be considerably less than normal, perhaps by as much 1,000 workers.

No farming has been done in the Poplar Bluff area as yet. It has been estimated that cotton acreage there will be around 23,000 acres, soybeans about 175,000 acres, corn approximately 65,000 acres and wheat around 25,000 acres. This acreage is near the same amount as in 1965.

The Poplar Bluff area will also have approximately 2,500 acres of rice planted. At the present time there are 29 families there seeking work. These are large families and would require transportation advance to move. There are also 16 single farm applicants seeking some kind of farm work.

Nurse-midwives are trained to handle routine prenatal and postnatal care, including advice on feeding infants, and to perform deliveries, unless complications are suspected or do arise.

And why not, several authorities suggest, borrow from the military system that quickly trains "medics" or corpsmen to high skill for specific life-saving work on the battlefield? Their counterparts can be used at home.

Some medical leaders object that the homefront "medic" might "not know when he's getting in over his head, and might harm the patient." Proponents think he could perform with awareness of his own limitations, and at least provide services where none exist.

Changes — not all of which either patients or doctors may like — have been coming. House calls by doctors are far less frequent. Many doctors are banded together into group practice. Nurses or technicians often draw blood samples, or conduct some routine tests.

Some experts predict development of special assistants to take your medical history, before the doctor sees you to ask more questions, and make his diagnosis and recommendations.

In most discussions of change from old ways, there is concern about maintaining quality of care and training, and the personal touch in medicine. And sometimes there are fears about government dictation of how medicine shall be practiced.

But more changes are ahead to meet the demand for more health services.

Labor Pinch Felt in Area Farm Region

The first of the 1966 weekly series of farm labor bulletins, published by the Missouri Division of Employment Security at Jefferson City, has been released.

The Kennett office reports that no farming activity has started in Dunklin County. The local office is receiving a few seasonal farm hand orders with salary range from 75 cents to $1 per hour, depending on the qualifications of the farm hand.

Cotton acreage will be reduced in the county due to the new farm bill. Strawberry acreage is now reduced to under 40 acres for this season. The Crew Leader Registration Act has brought an end to the annual worker plan recruitment.

At Caruthersville practically all farming activity has been at a complete standstill since about December 15. Fields are still wet and the lack of activity is expected to continue for another two weeks.

The Cape Girardeau office reports that it has several urgent orders for farm families to work in the local area. Wages range from $40 to $50 per week with house furnished. The demand for seasonal day labor there is very light.

The four-county area served by the Sikeston office is expected to plant approximately 130,000 acres of cotton, 500,000 acres of soybeans, and 270,000

VIET NAM MONTAGE

BY DICK VAUGHAN

If World War 2 was the War of the Draftee, and the Korean War the War of the Reservist, then Viet Nam must surely be the War of the Professional. Despite the odoriferous mumbings of the un-washed, bearded Beatnik, few of their ilk are represented in this area. The average soldier in Viet Nam today is not one who was recently jerked from hearth and home, and shoved into the breach as cannon fodder as some protestors would have you believe, neither are they sadistic killers who derive pleasure from putting torch to a village, or slaughtering innocent people.

They are Professionals; Men who have attended classes together at Fort Benning, sweated out field problems in South Carolina, and answered alerts in Germany. They reacted to the Cuban crisis, and even though it may have been distasteful to some, they stood by in Mississippi.

They have pulled long, lonely hours of Officer of the Day, Sgt. of the Guard, and even C. O. They have shared drinks in officer's and N. C. O. Clubs, and coffee in rainstorms.

It is a very good thing that this army is composed in the main, of Professionals, because to paraphrase the late Mr. Churchill, "Never have so few, been beleaguered so much, by so many."

The draftee of World War 2 had everything from War Stamp drives to commercials such as "Lucky Strike Greens have Gone to War" to bolster his morale. He was told to "hurt the Hun" and "Slap the Jap" to make the World safe for Democracy.

"I'm sorry Jane," one ad ran, "But you can't have your new refrigerator now, we're busy making engines for the B-24 so that your Joe can hurry home to you."

Now while I really doubt that Lucky Strike cigarettes changing from green to white packages shortened the war by one second, it is indicative of the type of moral support that soldiers in WW II received.

Today, you can find full page ads in newspapers and magazines, asking for contributions to help the Viet Cong! You will find where American citizens are volunteering propaganda broadcasts to be beamed from Hanoi; and while during WW II Service men's wives proudly displayed stars in their windows, today they are requesting unlisted telephone numbers to avoid the crank calls.

Professional soldiers are used to a certain degree of misunderstanding from civilians during peace-time. We are all familiar with Rudyard Kipling's "Tommy," and long ago adopted his, as our own personal Philosophy. I am glad Mr. Kipling is no longer with us. How would his "Tommy" adjust to the demonstrations of today?

Two Captured After Shooting At Officer

CAIRO, ILL. - Two men captured near Mounds Friday evening after allegedly shooting at an Alexander County deputy sheriff and escaping from him in a cloud of car exhaust, were arraigned Monday before Alexander County Magistrate Robert M. Williams and charged with attempted murder.

Sheriff Earl Shepherd reported that bond was set at $10,000 for each man. The suspects were identified as Charles Morgan, 26, Memphis, and Johnny Paul Washam, 33, Clarksdale, Miss.

The suspects were found Friday evening in a farm field after a search of the Cache River bottoms near Mounds. The men were captured by Mounds Chief of Police Ronnie Bonner and Deputy Sam McAllister.

The suspects had been stopped early Friday morning by Deputy J. D. McHughes for a routine check when they started firing at him and sped away in their car.

Morgan is reportedly wanted in Senatobia, Miss. in connection with the theft of about $100,000 in bonds from a courthouse.

West Germans Wary of De Gaulle

BONN, Germany (AP) — Charles de Gaulle's stock is falling again in West Germany because he apparently wants France to stop the United States from doing in France. He is taking steps to put French forces in Germany fully under his own command.

There are 60,000 to 70,000 French troops in West Germany, at least on paper. The United States has 26,000 in France.

In West Germany, the troops of the United States, Britain and France still are stationed in the same areas they have held 20 years. About 50,000 Americans in the central and southern portions of the country. The French are in the southwest.

The West Germans do not complain about this situation. Yet in some ways they are even more sensitive about national sovereignty than De Gaulle. In 1945, they were a defeated nation without rights. A decade later they joined the Atlantic Alliance. Any proposal that looks like a lowering of their status gets a most unfriendly reception in Bonn.

So the presence of foreign troops is all right with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government as long as they are under a unified Atlantic command, as are West Germany's own 400,000 men. Looking across the Iron Curtain that divides their country, the West Germans express worry if there is any question of cutting down the strength.

What the West Germans don't like is the idea of returning to anything like the situation right after World War II, when foreign troops occupying German territory were the supreme authority in the land. This could occur under present treaties if an emergency arose and the American, British and French commanders decided they were threatened—say by war or rioting. Erhard's government has been trying hard to eliminate this possibility but has run into domestic political difficulties.

Now the prospect arises that the French troops will revert to purely French command even without an emergency.

De Gaulle probably is ready to negotiate some kind of joint command directly with Erhard. But Erhard wrote him last week that all these matters concern the alliance as a whole and need to be negotiated with all 15 members. Naturally these include the United States.

De Gaulle has made it plain that he would like a European defense system, built around his own nuclear force and allied only loosely with the United States. There has been much talk of a political and defense organization among the countries of the Common Market: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. So far it has come to nothing.

None of the other governments, and particularly not the West German, is interested in a defense system designed to drive the United States out of Europe and to risk losing the protection of the American nuclear umbrella.

De Gaulle's plan to resume full control over French troops in Germany may be designed as pressure on the West Germans to change their minds. A Gaullist group active in West German politics wants to do just that. Its leaders are ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his former defense minister, Franz Josef Strauss. They belong to Erhard's Christian Democratic party but are at odds with him and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder.

Erhard and Schroeder now have the problem of how to keep the French troops in Germany, give up as little national sovereignty as possible and at the same time avoid antagonizing the United States by making a special deal with De Gaulle.

Wall Street Skeptical Line Can Be Held

NEW YORK (AP)—The administration is holding to its view that the economy can go on expanding without overheating or setting off rapid inflation. But Wall Street is raising a skeptical eyebrow.

Official Washington spokesmen are reaffirming that increased government spending, business spending and consumer spending are healthy—and even needed.

They are pooh-poohing worries that the sharp drop in the jobless rate and coincidental shortages of workmen with certain skills is dangerous.

They insist that the economy still has plenty of resources to tap and labor to employ in order to go on growing and to supply all the funds wanted for both the Viet Nam war and the "Great Society."

At the same time, the administration spokesmen are hedging each pronouncement with the assurance that if overheating starts, if inflation gets out of hand, the White House will move quickly to cool things down by asking for higher taxes on corporations and individuals.

Why is Wall Street so skeptical, as shown by the sharp sell-off in the stock market?

Some of the economic rules haven't been operating quite as many had anticipated a few months back.

The rise of interest rates to the highest levels in 30 years would normally be supposed to put a brake on the boom in spending. But bankers say that so far it hasn't, and their big problem is to find the money to lend to their clamoring customers.

Most of these are businessmen seeking to finance activities which have been expanding faster than earlier expected. They are also expected to borrow heavily—either at the bank or by floating bonds or other securities—to pay for their swelling plans for building new plants and buying new equipment.

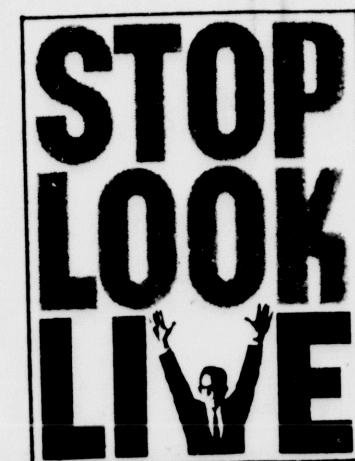

Wall Street also notes that many industries now are operating close to maximum profitable capacity—that is, from now on more production would have to be in less profitable, because outdated, plants. It is this bumping against the capacity ceiling, when demand for goods is rising, that has led to slow but steady increase in both industrial and consumer prices.

Consumers also are going right on seeking loans. Most of these are for the big ticket items such as cars. There's less mortgage borrowing for home purchases.

The auto industry reports that new car sales this month have been setting a record for March. Many buyers are doing so on the monthly payment plan.

West Germans Wary of De Gaulle

BONN, Germany (AP) — Charles de Gaulle's stock is falling again in West Germany because he apparently wants France to stop the United States from doing in France. He is taking steps to put French forces in Germany fully under his own command.

There are 60,000 to 70,000 French troops in West Germany, at least on paper. The United States has 26,000 in France.

In West Germany, the troops of the United States, Britain and France still are stationed in the same areas they have held 20 years. About 50,000 British are in the north and 250,000 Americans in the central and southern portions of the country. The French are in the southwest.

The West Germans do not complain about this situation. Yet in some ways they are even more sensitive about national sovereignty than De Gaulle. In 1945, they were a defeated nation without rights. A decade later they joined the Atlantic Alliance. Any proposal that looks like a lowering of their status gets a most unfriendly reception in Bonn.

So the presence of foreign troops is all right with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government as long as they are under a unified Atlantic command, as are West Germany's own 400,000 men. Looking across the Iron Curtain that divides their country, the West Germans express worry if there is any question of cutting down the strength.

What the West Germans don't like is the idea of returning to anything like the situation right after World War II, when foreign troops occupying German territory were the supreme authority in the land. This could occur under present treaties if an emergency arose and the American, British and French commanders decided their troops were threatened—say by war or rioting. Erhard's government has been trying

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The administration is holding to its view that the economy can go on expanding without overheating or setting off rapid inflation. But Wall Street is raising a skeptical eyebrow.

Official Washington spokesmen are reaffirming that increased government spending, business spending and consumer spending are healthy—and even needed.

They are pooh-poohing worries that the sharp drop in the jobless rate and coincidental shortages of workmen with certain skills is dangerous.

They insist that the economy still has plenty of resources to tap and labor to employ in order to go on growing and to supply all the funds wanted for both the Viet Nam war and the "Great Society."

At the same time, the administration spokesmen are hedging each pronouncement with the assurance that if overheating starts, if inflation gets out of hand, the White House will move quickly to cool things down by asking for higher taxes on corporations and individuals.

Why is Wall Street so skeptical, as shown by the sharp sell-off in the stock market?

Some of the economic rules haven't been operating quite as

hard to eliminate this possibility but has run into domestic political difficulties.

Now the prospect arises that the French troops will revert to purely French command even without an emergency.

De Gaulle probably is ready to negotiate some kind of joint command directly with Erhard. But Erhard wrote him last week that all these matters concern the alliance as a whole and need to be negotiated with all 15 members. Naturally these include the United States.

De Gaulle has made it plain that he would like a European defense system built around his own nuclear force and allied only loosely with the United States. There has been much talk of a political and defense organization among the countries of the Common Market: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. So far it has come to nothing.

None of the other governments, and particularly not the West German, is interested in a defense system designed to drive the United States out of Europe and to risk losing the protection of the American nuclear umbrella.

De Gaulle's plan to resume full control over French troops in Germany may be designed as pressure on the West Germans to change their minds. A Gaulist group active in West German politics wants to do just that. Its leaders are ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his former defense minister, Franz Josef Strauss. They belong to Erhard's Christian Democratic party but are at odds with him and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder.

Erhard and Schröder now have the problem of how to keep the French troops in Germany, give up as little national sovereignty as possible and at the same time avoid antagonizing the United States by making a special deal with De Gaulle.

The rise of interest rates to the highest levels in 30 years would normally be supposed to put a brake on the boom in spending. But bankers say that so far it hasn't, and their big problem is to find the money to lend to their clamoring customers.

Most of these are businessmen seeking to finance activities which have been expanding faster than earlier expected. They are also expected to borrow heavily—either at the bank or by floating bonds or other securities—to pay for their swelling plans for building new plants and buying new equipment.

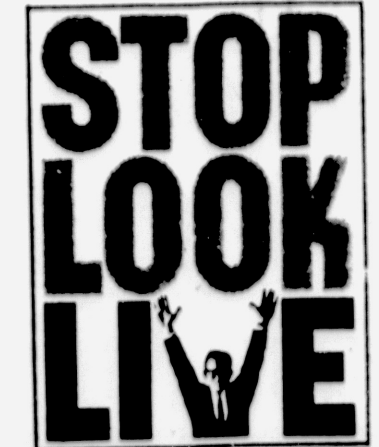

Wall Street also notes that many industries now are operating close to maximum profitable capacity—that is, from now on more production would have to be in less profitable, because outdated, plants. It is this bumping against the capacity ceiling, when demand for goods is rising, that has led to slow but steady increase in both industrial and consumer prices.

Consumers also are going right on seeking loans. Most of these are for the big ticket items such as cars. There's less mortgage borrowing for home purchases.

The auto industry reports that new car sales this month have been setting a record for March. Many buyers are doing so on the monthly payment plan.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Thursday, March 17, the 76th day of 1966. There are 289 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1776, the British evacuated Boston, ending a long siege which began with the Battle of Bunker Hill, seven months before.

On this date

In 1756, the first St. Patrick's Day celebration in New York City was held -- and in 1779 the first St. Patrick's Day parade.

In 1836, a constitution was adopted for the Republic of Texas.

In 1861, King Victor Emmanuel the second, was proclaimed ruler of Italy.

In 1905, Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt were married.

In 1942, Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived in Australia to become supreme commander for the Southwest Pacific.

Ten years ago -- France recognized the independence of Tunisia.

Five years ago -- a new college basketball scandal was disclosed in New York -- with two gamblers arrested on charges of bribing players of the University of Connecticut and Seton Hall University.

One year ago -- Tornadoes destroyed more than 40 homes in northwest Alabama and heavy snow closed hundreds of schools in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois.

Dexter Welfare Building Under Construction

DEXTER -- A building to house the district welfare offices will be built here, beginning immediately by Gary Dowdy and J. D. Persfull.

Dowdy said that he had received official confirmation from Proctor Carter, director of the Missouri division of welfare, approving the building plan and the rental agreement.

The building will house the district offices of the welfare department which has been housed in the old bank building.

Dowdy said that the state officials wanted occupancy of the building by June 1, and that he and his partner hoped to have the building completed by that date. It will be necessary to either move or tear down two residences now located on the property. Occupants of the houses have been given official notice, and efforts are being made to find rental property for them, Dowdy said.

The building plan has been under negotiation for several months after officials of the Department of Welfare indicated that they wanted new and modern quarters in Dexter. Officials of the Chamber of Commerce here and others began at once to find a builder of such a building, and worked closely with State Representative Tom F. Baker and Carter in the negotiations.

Dowdy said the building will be modern in every detail. It will be 30 feet by 60 feet and will be of concrete block construction with the front faced with brick. The building will be completely air-conditioned. Floors will be of tile.

Multiple Charges Filed Against Two

CAIRO -- Two men who eluded a deputy sheriff Friday and were the object of a day-long search in fields near Mounds have had multiple charges placed against them in Alexander county.

Johnny Paul Washam, 33, Clarksdale, Miss., and Charles Morgan, 26, Memphis, have been charged with attempted murder, possession of burglar tools, resisting and obstructing a peace officer, and possession of stolen property.

They were arraigned before Judge Robert M. Williams, who set their bond at $19,000 each. A hearing for the two men is scheduled for March 29.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Charles Jesus said authorities in Memphis, Clarksdale, Senatobia, Miss., and federal authorities have placed a hold on the pair.

Washam and Morgan fled from deputy J. D. McHughes when he attempted to halt them on a routine traffic investigation near Glen's Restaurant on Route 51 about 4 a.m. Friday. As the car speeded away one of the men emptied a .38 caliber pistol through the rear window of their car at the pursuing deputy.

They abandoned the vehicle near the National Cemetery and fled in the darkness. Mounds chief of police Ronnie Bonner found them hiding in a brush-ple late Friday on a farm near Mounds.

Truck Stolen At Hayti

HAYTI -- The Hayti police department was informed at 9:30 Monday night that a 1951 GMC pickup truck has been stolen earlier in the evening.

The truck is red and carries the name B. E. Welch on both sides. It is the property of Walter Turner, who resides five miles north of Hayti on Highway 61, but was in Hayti when his truck was stolen.

An alert has been sent out over the area for law authorities to be on the lookout for the truck.

Child Hurt in Balcony Fall

MALDEN -- A two-year-old Malden area child is recovering rapidly from injuries received Friday night in a fall from a balcony at the Malden High School gymnasium.

Scotty Nelson, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Arville Nelson, Route 1, Bernie, was attending the special basketball game sponsored by the Jaycees. He toppled 10 feet from the south balcony to the floor of the gym. He landed on his left side and the left side of his head struck the floor.

Wilbur Thornton and members of the Malden Rescue Squad (a Civil Defense Unit) rushed the child to the Dunkin' County Memorial Hospital at Kennett. After physicians there examined him the child was removed to the Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis.

The youngster sustained a skull fracture and a concussion. His condition is reported as good and there is a possibility that he will be allowed to return home within a few days.

Scotty's father is a member of the Malden Jaycees.

At the conclusion of the basketball game between the SeMo Coaches and the All-American Red Heads, Orwell Moore, owner of the Red Heads, contributed $75 from his share of the proceeds to be applied to the child's hospital expenses.

Advance School Election April 5

ADVANCE -- The annual school election will be held April 5 in the lobby of the gymnasium. The polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

Voters will elect two board members for a term of three years each and vote on a tax levy of $3.25 to be broken down into the following funds: $1.40, incidental 80 cents; teachers; 70 cents; building; 35 cents; debt service.

The tax levy is the same as the previous levy voted on last year.

Two More File For Director

MALDEN -- Two more candidates filed this week for school director of Malden R-1 school district. They are Jacob Snider, seeking reelection, and Dr. Don Hamra.

Three other candidates have filed for two positions to be filled. They are George Anderson, Jerome Overall and Clarence (Froggie) Kilmer. Kilmer will be seeking reelection.

The deadline for candidates to file is 5 p.m., Friday.

Three Cape Students Accused

MALDEN -- Three students of Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, are being held in the city jail in connection with the theft of a pickup truck belonging to Thelma L. Starnes, Route 2, Parma.

Russell E. Kappesser, 21, Tim Trotter, 21, and Thomas E. Dixon, 19, all of St. Louis, were arrested at 1 a.m. Wednesday by Officers W. R. Earnheart and Andrew Loafman as they came out of a cafe to get into a truck parked nearby.

Chief of Police R. M. Thompson said that the truck, a 1953 Chevrolet pickup, was taken between the hours of 8:00 p.m. and 10 p.m. about two and one-half miles north of Route 1 near Riddle Hill.

He said that his department had received notice that the truck had been stolen and that Earnheart and Loafman spotted it parked near the cafe about 1 a.m.

Thompson said that the three young men admitted taking the truck and driving it to Malden. They offered no explanation as to why they were in the area.

Report Poring Time

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) -- Corporations are flooding the mails with annual reports these days. And their legions of owners can indulge in one of America's most satisfying pastimes -- deciding who's the biggest.

But a company that's tops when viewed from one angle may not be from another.

The biggest money maker, for example, is well down the list of companies with the largest assets. And at least a million more persons prefer to own stock in the company that's the runner-up in profits than to hold shares of the corporation that's top dog in total sales or revenues.

The annual see-saw on who is the biggest money maker already has been won. General Motors takes the title for the second straight year. With a record $2,125,606,440 of profits in 1965 it made $329 million more after taxes than did runner-up American Telephone & Telegraph with $1,796,094,000.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Jersey Standard Oil was third with $1,035,000,000.

But the phone company can claim to be the biggest of all if the measure is total assets. It now has $40,388,648,000, up nearly $10 billion from 1964. AT&T also is far ahead of GM, whose assets are $11,478,546,590. And the auto giant probably trails the oil company, which hasn't reported yet for 1965, but had $12,489,565,000 in assets at the end of 1964.

These top money makers in the auto and oil industries are far below the leading banks and insurance companies when it comes to assets. Metropolitan Life counted $21,398,602,000 at the start of 1964 and Prudential $21,015,885,000.

The Bank of America reported assets of $16,528,957,604 at the end of 1965 for fourth place. Chase Manhattan, New York, was fifth with $15,331,407,583, and First National City Bank, New York, sixth with $13,976,787,000.

Still another measure of business is the total of sales or revenues. Here GM is the champ, as in profits, with sales of $20,733,982,295 in 1965. Jersey Standard reports $12,725,000,000 in revenues and the phone company $11,061,783,000.

Sears, Roebuck's latest figures are around $7 billion, while the A&P grocery chain tops $5 billion.

"It is really a smoothie," Armstrong said when the docking was completed.

But his elation was short lived.

Mission directors at the control center in Houston, Tex., suddenly were jolted out of their seats when tracking data indicated the joined spaceships were rolling.

"It took off in roll and yaw," Armstrong reported.

This quote was passed on to newsmen by Flight Director John Hodge. But he and other officials said they could not let reporters hear the full tape because the tone of the voices and what the astronauts said might be misinterpreted.

"Until we know what the sequence of events are, we don't want to release the tape," said Operations Director Christopher C. Kraft. "Just because they said there was a problem with the No. 8 thruster doesn't mean this is so. We want to look at all the data and then try to decide what went wrong."

Multiple Charges Filed Against Two

CAIRO -- Two men who eluded a deputy sheriff Friday and were the object of a day-long search in fields near Mounds have had multiple charges placed against them in Alexander county.

Johnny Paul Washam, 33, Clarksdale, Miss., and Charles Morgan, 26, Memphis, have been charged with attempted murder, possession of burglar tools, resisting and obstructing a peace officer, and possession of stolen property.

They were arraigned before Judge Robert M. Williams, who set their bond at $19,000 each. A hearing for the two men is scheduled for March 29.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Charles Jesus said authorities in Memphis, Clarksdale, Senatobia, Miss., and federal authorities have placed a hold on the pair.

Washam and Morgan fled from deputy J. D. McHughes when he attempted to halt them on a routine traffic investigation near Glen's Restaurant on Route 51 about 4 a.m. Friday. As the car sped away one .38 caliber pistol through the rear window of their car at the pursuing deputy.

They abandoned the vehicle near the National Cemetery and fled in the darkness. Mounds chief of police Ronnie Bonner found them hiding in a brushy area late Friday on a farm near Mounds.

HAYTI -- The Hayti police department was informed at 9:30 Monday night that a 1951 GMC pickup truck has been stolen earlier in the evening.

The truck is red and carries the name B. E. Welch on both sides. It is the property of Walter Turner, who resides five miles north of Hayti on Highway 61, but was in Hayti when his truck was stolen.

An alert has been sent out over the area for law authorities to be on the lookout for the truck.

Child Hurt in Balcony Fall

MALDEN -- A two-year-old Malden area child is recovering rapidly from injuries received Friday night in a fall from a balcony at the Malden High School gymnasium.

Scotty Nelson, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Arville Nelson, Route 1, Bernie, was attending the special basketball game sponsored by the Jaycees. He toppled 10 feet from the south balcony to the floor of the gym. He landed on his left side and the left side of his head struck the floor.

Wilbur Thornton and members of the Malden Rescue Squad (a Civil Defense Unit) rushed the child to the Dunklin County Memorial Hospital at Kennett. After physicians there examined him the child was removed to the Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis.

The youngster sustained a skull fracture and a concussion. His condition is reported as good and there is a possibility that he will be allowed to return home within a few days.

Scotty's father is a member of the Malden Jaycees.

At the conclusion of the basketball game between the SeMo Coaches and the All-American Red Heads, Orwell Moore, owner of the Red Heads, contributed $75 from his share of the proceeds to be applied to the child's hospital expenses.

Advance School

Election April 5

ADVANCE -- The annual school election will be held April 5 in the lobby of the gymnasium. The polls will open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

Voters will elect two board members for a term of three years each and vote on a tax levy of $3.25 to be broken down into the following funds: $1.40, incidental 80 cents; teachers; 70 cents, building; 35 cents, debt service.

The tax levy is the same as the previous levy voted on last year.

Hayti Will Vote On Annexation

HAYTI -- Hayti residents will vote whether to annex two large areas into the city in their regular City Election to be held April 5th.

The annexation vote will be held at the same time and in the same voting places as the regular election, in order to save the cost of a Special Election.

The proposed annexation includes the following:

Starting at the North W-W of Cleveland Avenue intersection with the West R-W of Pemsco Avenue, for a point of beginning; thence run West 3530 feet more or less, for a point due north of the Present Northwest Corner of City limits; thence run South 1750 feet more or less to the Northwest Corner of present City limits.

Also, starting at the Southwest corner of Lot 88, Tract 8, Mallory's Replat of the SW 1/4 of Section 4, Twp. 18, North, of Range 12, East, for a point of beginning; thence South along the West R-W of Mallory Street 2576 feet to the C.L. of Section 4; thence East on C.L. of Section 4 to the center corner of the East 1/2; thence South 1709.5 feet; thence East 793 feet to the R-W of the Frisco Railroad; thence North 11 Degrees 15 minutes East along railroad R-W 1940 feet to a point 487 feet more or less north of the C.L. of section 4; thence East 450 feet more or less to the intersection of the existing city limits.

In other action the Board of aldermen in special session met with members of the City Park Board to discuss the construction of a new structure in the park.

Members of the park board present were Lawrence James, Chairman; and the following: Carl England, Pearl Wimberley, Harold Slavins, Wilburn Mathis, and Bob Sherwood, Park Custodian.

The proposed structure would be built onto the east side of the present park building, and would be 10' x 60' in size.

Present plans would include three large barbecue "pits" in this building, which would be used by the Junior Chamber of Commerce for their annual Fourth of July Picnic and Barbecue.

The Jaycees have pledged $250 per year for the use of the building, which would also be available for rental to other organizations or individuals for family parties or gatherings.

Report Poring Time

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) -- Corporations are flooding the mails with annual reports these days. And their legions of owners can indulge in one of America's most satisfying pastimes -- deciding who's the biggest.

But a company that's tops when viewed from one angle may not be from another.

The biggest money maker, for example, is well down the list of companies with the largest assets. And at least a million more persons prefer to own stock in the company that's the runner-up in profits than to hold shares of the corporation that's top dog in total sales or revenues.

The annual see-saw on who is the biggest money maker already has been won. General Motors takes the title for the second straight year. With a record $2,125,606,440 of profits in 1965 it made $329 million more after taxes than did runner-up American Telephone & Telegraph with $1,796,094,000.

Jersey Standard Oil was third with $1,035,000,000.

But the phone company can claim to be the biggest of all if the measure is total assets. It now has $40,388,648,000, up nearly $10 billion from 1964. AT&T also is far ahead of GM, whose assets are $11,478,546,590. And the auto giant probably trails the oil company, which hasn't reported yet for 1965, but had $12,489,565,000 in assets at the end of 1964.

These top money makers in the auto and oil industries are far below the leading banks and insurance companies when it comes to assets. Metropolitan Life counted $21,398,602,000 at the start of 1964 and Prudential $21,015,885,000.

The Bank of America reported assets of $16,528,957,604 at the end of 1965 for fourth place. Chase Manhattan, New York, was fifth with $15,331,407,583, and First National City Bank, New York, sixth with $13,976,787,000.

Still another measure of bigness is the total of sales or revenues. Here GM is the champ, as in profits, with sales of $20,733,982,295 in 1965. Jersey Standard reports $12,725,000,000 in revenues and the phone company $11,061,783,000.

Sears, Roebuck's latest figures are around $7 billion, while the A&P grocery chain tops $5 billion.

brilliant space chase by gently nudging the Gemini 8 nose into a funnel-like docking collar of a 26-foot-long Agena space vehicle.

"It is really a smoothie," Armstrong said when the docking was completed.

But his elation was short lived.

Mission directors at the control center in Houston, Tex., suddenly were jolted out of their seats when tracking data indicated the joined spaceships were rolling.

"It took off in roll and yaw," Armstrong reported.

This quote was passed on to newsmen by Flight Director John Hodge. But he and other officials said they could not let reporters hear the full tape because the tone of the voices and what the astronauts said might be misinterpreted.

"Until we know what the sequence of events are, we don't want to release the tape," said Operations Director Christopher C. Kraft. "Just because they said there was a problem with the No. 8 thruster does not mean this is so. We want to look at all the data and then try to decide what went wrong."
